What's Love Got to Do With It?

by

*Pastor
Leslie*

There are many schools of theology, which is clearly reflected in the estimated 33,000 – 45,000 Christian denominations globally. Two main “camps” focus primarily on one of the two creation stories.

The final day of creation, God proclaims that it is very good and then takes a day of Sabbath rest. If we believe that God's creation is good, then we can draw the conclusion that we too are good. Loved from the beginning. We are not in the business of earning God's love, instead we are able to minister and worship because of the support of a loving God.

The second creation story focuses on Adam and Eve, the serpent, the tree of Good and Evil, temptation, and what is often referred to as “the fall.” If we believe that we are born sinful, an inheritance from the first man and woman, then we are working to earn God's love. We are striving to be enough, being faithful so we can know of God's love.

We may find that we move between these two camps. Both are valid. I invite you to consider which one seems to fit best with your image of God as you consider, what's love got to do with it?

I would venture to say everything. Our theology shapes how we relate to God and to our neighbors. Is love earned or given? Are there strings attached or is it unconditional?

Week of Compassion

Whether rebuilding after a flood, finding safety after conflict, or recovering from economic hardship, Week of Compassion is finding A NEW WAY – a way rooted in relationship, equity, and hope. Together, we are strengthening the church's long-term capacity to respond and accompany, wherever people are displaced or in need.

The gifts you give make an impact around the world, ensuring that vulnerable communities are held at the center of the work, and strengthening congregations and partners to respond.

In moments when we're most uncertain, when the usual path is blocked or can't even be seen, we rely on each other. Like the friends who join together and make a way where there was no way, determined that their friend would see Jesus (Mark 2:1-5), in this work we share, God is opening new ways. Our task is to walk them faithfully – together, with imagination, courage, and trust in the One who makes all things new.

In this moment, the Spirit is calling us to walk paths we have not yet walked, to imagine futures we have not yet seen, and to trust that the God who has carried us this far will not abandon us now.

Thank you for your generosity, your faithfulness, and your commitment to walking alongside those whose paths have been disrupted. Together, we are the church – rooted in compassion, moving in hope.
